

Thousand Ulsterites Have Busy Day at New York Fair; Mayor LaGuardia Attends

Heiselman and La Guardia Exchange Amiable Banter at Exercises

Ulster county's delegation of almost 1,000 people who had their day to honor their native area at New York's World's Fair yesterday, returned home at 3 o'clock this morning inspired by the exposition's wondrous sights but weary from the fullness of the day.

Officially the event marked Ulster County-Kingston Day at the fair and it therefore virtually represented an appraisal by this area of this preview of tomorrow's world.

The event provided an opportunity also to stress the importance of Kingston and Ulster county in the world of today and the area's hope for a growing future. It drew the right kind of attention from official circles and once again focussed important notice on this region which has long been recognized as a wonderland of nature.

Those who were part of the delegation expressed themselves as not only pleased with the amazing display at the fair grounds, but also with the ceremonies which climaxed the visitation of the Kingston and Ulster county folk.

Symbolic Presentation
Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman of this city had his chance to make a symbolic presentation to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, and to "sell" the area to the leaders of a metropolis. In presenting a bowl of cherries to Mayor LaGuardia, Mayor Heiselman pointed out that the region was famous also for apples. He added:

"Don't forget to come up and see us later in the year in apple picking time in Ulster," said Mayor Heiselman, "and bring with you this empty bowl, now filled with cherries, and we will see that it is filled to the brim and overflowing with 'something else.'"

Will Visit County
Mayor LaGuardia in accepting the gift assured Kingston's mayor that he planned to be in Ulster county later in the year on a tour of inspection of New York city's new water system, and he would not forget the invitation extended.

Ulster county and Kingston left its impression on the World's Fair at the ceremonies marking the presentation which was made about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon in front of the Ulster-Kingston exhibit in the New York State Building at the World's Fair where residents and former residents of Ulster county gathered.

Luncheon at Casino
The ceremonies opened at noon with a luncheon served in the League of Nations Casino, and was followed by a tour of inspection of the grounds. The several hundred from Kingston and the county made the trip to the fair in chartered buses and private cars.

Bowls Presented
Two bowls of hammered copper made by James Scott of Milton and filled with luscious Ulster county cherries were presented at the exercises in the State Building, when Robert A. Snyder, chairman of the Ulster county Board of Supervisors, presented one of the bowls to Thomas J. Donovan, administrative assistant to Grover Whalen, who was unable to attend while the other bowl was presented to New York's mayor by Mayor Heiselman.

New York city's radio station WNYC had installed recording equipment for the exercises which were transcribed later from that station.

Yesterday afternoon from 4 to 4:15 o'clock Mayor Heiselman and Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau manager, interviewed each other over Station WNYC on their impressions of the fair and on the advantages of the county. The broadcast was made from the New York city building on the fair grounds.

The great majority of those attending the fair from Kingston and Ulster county made the trip in chartered buses, arriving at the fair shortly before the luncheon.

Editing Leads Delegation
The large delegation was led by Philip Eiling, Republican leader of Ulster county, and Kingston's mayor, and numbered among the delegation were many prominent county and city officials.

New York city was indebted to Ulster county for its water which kept the city clean and its citizens sober, Kingston's mayor assured Mayor LaGuardia in his

The "Day" was celebrated by a contingent of approximately 1,000 persons who traveled to the fair from Kingston and neighboring communities by bus and private automobile.

Brueck Announces Stark Says Link Kingston to Get Must End Between C.S.A. Convention Crime and Politics

About 500 Delegates Will Meet in City in 1940 for Conclave; Met Here Three Years Ago

The Civil Service Association of the State of New York will hold its 1940 convention in Kingston, Mayor Heiselman learned today through a letter from Philip F. Brueck, convention committee chairman. The conclave here next year will be the second for civil service employees, the organization having met here three years ago.

Approximately 500 delegates are expected to meet in the city for the convention which will last three or four days. Kingston was selected, Mayor Heiselman was informed, because its facilities were considered outstanding among a group of other cities also considered.

The letter to Mayor Heiselman on the association's choice to meet here follows:

THE CIVIL SERVICE ASSOCIATION of the State of New York
June 26, 1939
Hon. Conrad J. Heiselman, Mayor
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Mayor Heiselman:
Your letter to Secretary O'Neill and the telegram from Senator Arthur Wick, extending an invitation to The Civil Service Association of the State of New York to hold its 1940 convention in your city, was received in time for the committee to include Kingston among the cities to be considered as possible locations for the 1940 convention.

After considering the various facilities in each of the cities which had been recommended to the committee, it was our unanimous decision that the convention of this organization should be held in Kingston, New York. The

World's Fair Places 24-Hour Guard Over Old Sailing Ship

New York, June 27 (AP)—A 24-hour police guard has been placed over the Yankee, an old sailing ship in the New England exhibit at the New York World's Fair, after receipt of three telephone warnings that the ship would be bombed.

The warnings followed a long series of labor disputes over carpenter work and rigging aboard the square-rigged merchantman. A strike was called two weeks ago by Riggers and Machinery Movers Local 170, and officials decided to avert further trouble by leaving the rigging unfinished.

The latest dispute arose when exhibit officials called in experienced union ship carpenters and nautical riggers to speed the

Long, Sworn Governor To Cleanup Louisiana

Brother of Late 'Kingfish' Promises He'll Continue to Cleanse State's Politics Following Leche's Resignation at Baton Rouge

Baton Rouge, La., June 27 (AP)—Triumphant at last in his tireless quest for state power, Governor Earl Kemp Long today moved swiftly to rehabilitate and save the old Huey Long political machine, badly shaken by "financial irregularity" charges claiming attention of federal authorities.

The new chief executive, brother of the late "Kingfish," promised no let-up in a cleanup of knotted political affairs of the state. Long was sworn in last night following the resignation of Richard W. Leche in the midst of further federal scrutiny of WPA activities here. Leche's term had 11 months to run.

Long's staunch political ally and mentor, Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans, sat beside the new executive as he outlined his plans for occupancy of the ornate gubernatorial mansion his brother built for himself, in 1929, high above the Mississippi river.

Less Tumult Desired
The influence of Maestri, noted for his conservative, constructive business-like administration in the state's metropolis, led some to hope the state's affairs under Earl would be less tumultuous than under his older brother's rule.

First of the major mysteries growing out of the political upheaval concerned the whereabouts of Dr. James Monroe Smith, genial president of Louisiana State University, a staid educator turned overnight into a fugitive following his disappearance and charges he had embezzled $100,000 in university funds.

State auditors here and in New Orleans brokerage houses today were busy unscrambling Smith's complicated accounts, in which were reported indications he met financial distress by speculating on a fallen wheat market.

Fenner's Disclosure
Charles E. Fenner, senior partner of Fenner and Beane, brokers, made the disclosure of Smith's activities in the market. He said the former LSU president had opened operations with his firm in 1936 through an intermediary and under the code name of J. Monroe.

Fenner said the account was closed out 10 days ago, after the firm had refused to accept State University bonds to cover losses in wheat. The account, Fenner said, was paid fully by two checks for $100,000 each.

Authorities here said charges against Smith involved unauthorized issuance of university bonds for use as collateral in market speculation. The university board of administrators gave assurances the institution's educational prestige had not been damaged by Smith's operations.

Quoting the Bible, as his brother was wont to do, the new governor pledged his administration to a cleanup of the university's affairs, and said he was more concerned with a "righteous" administration than "great revenues."

"Let Chips Fall"
"So far as investigation of the university goes, let the chips fall where they may," he said. "We're going to sift and sift until we get to the bottom of this thing, and that goes for anything else in Louisiana that needs looking into."

Former Governor Leche, bursting with good humor and apparently much improved from the ill health given as his cause for retirement, did not pause to help his successor take over last night as he hurried to his country home at nearby Covington, La., to rest, taking with him his wife and 11-year-old son.

License Suspended
New York, June 27 (AP)—Charges that an American sea captain had revived the old-time practice by "shanghaiing" some of his crew led to a recommendation today by a federal marine investigation board that his license be suspended six months. The action against Capt. Alexander Zaffros, master of the Standard Oil tanker Walter Jennings, was described by federal officials as the first of its kind ever taken against a captain on the basis of charges by his crew. Some crew members protested that, after sailing from New York for Corpus Christi, Texas, the captain diverted the ship's course to a South American port, contrary to his articles, to prevent crew members from joining a strike in progress at Corpus Christi.

Washington, June 27 (AP)—The position of the Treasury June 24: Receipts $8,159,991.47; expenditures $18,265,389.77; net balance $2,965,905.77.08; working balance included $2,290,373.80.08; customs receipts for month $19,768,706.62; receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $5,622,548.97.55; expenditures $9,076,929.318.55; emergency expenditures included $3,052,849.95.70; excess of expenditures $3,453,743.340.00; gross debt $40,376,298.709.26; increase over previous day $1,474,249.21; gold assets $16,064,257,075.15.

Big Shoot
Camp Ritchie, Md., June 28—A record number of the nation's leading marksmen will take part in the 18th annual Eastern Small-Bore Rifle and Pistol Championships which get under way here on Friday, June 30 and continue through July 4th. Advance entries are greater than ever before and tents, coats and bedding are being provided for more than 500 competitors, many of whom will have their families with them.

Albany Recess
Albany, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—A special grand jury investigating Albany county election frauds recessed till August 17 yesterday, leaving a total of 210 indictments behind it.

Testimony Completed
New York, June 27 (AP)—Testimony in the larceny trial of Mrs. Lillian Schrein, accused of the theft of $60,000 from Martin Beck, her uncle by marriage and her former employer, was completed today after the theatrical producer had categorically denied intimacies with her. Counsel will sum up tomorrow and the case is expected to go to the jury on Thursday.

Hearing in Fall
New York, June 27 (AP)—The appellate division today postponed until autumn the hearing on a referee's report recommending removal of Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, one of the two magistrates James J. Hines, former Tammany district leader, was accused of influencing.

London Is Told Duke to Return

October Is Date Set, Paper Declares; American Visit in Prospect

London, June 27 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard, usually well informed about the Duke of Windsor's plans, said today the duke and duchess had decided to return to England next October to take up residence here.

The Standard's story, published in last afternoon edition, said also it was possible that the former King Edward VIII and his American-born wife would visit the United States next year.

Lord Beaverbrook's Standard and his morning paper, the Daily Express, long have carried on a campaign for the return of the Duke of Windsor to England, which he last saw immediately after his abdication December 11, 1936, to marry the former Wallis Simpson.

Without giving the source of its information, the Standard said: The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have decided to return to England.

"They will arrive in October and take up residence here. There is no question of their obtaining permission."

"As British citizens, the duke and duchess are free to come and go as they please."

"The duke has for some time past resolved not to insist on the granting of the title royal highness to the duchess."

"It is probable that they will visit the United States next year."

Atlantic City, N. J., June 27 (AP)—"Celema," a half-grown kitten that resides at 3216 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, was assured today of a happy vacation in Atlantic City, chasing field mice under the boardwalk.

Celema has already had a fair sample of Atlantic City. She slept under the boardwalk Saturday night and Sunday night with her owner, 13-year-old Dorothy Johnston, and both were quite down-at-the-heel yesterday when Patrolman George Gehrig took them to the police station.

CHARLES CLAPP

William Sharkey will give the valedictory speech tonight at the annual commencement exercises of Kingston High School while Charles Clapp will be salutatorian.

Talks With Boys
Mrs. Roosevelt spent some time prior to the ceremonies talking with the 46 boys who are now engaged on the project. When the entire project is completed it will care for both young men and young women who will be engaged in learning various crafts. These young folks at the Woodstock Resident Center will be engaged 70 hours a month and will earn enough each month to pay their share of the cooperative expenses of the center and also have funds for their own use. The project will house a workshop, sawmill, dormitory, recreation building, blacksmith shop and various other buildings in which hand-craft will be taught.

Prior to the ceremony of laying the cornerstone Mrs. Roosevelt was presented to numerous guests, members of the local advisory committee and Mayor Heiselman of Kingston. Mrs. Roosevelt displayed great interest in the project and made numerous inquiries of the boys as to the nature of the work and how the project would be laid out. Jerry Black, one of the NYA leaders on the project, displayed to her the plans of the center as it would be when completed.

The cornerstone was laid in the south-westerly corner of the wood-working building, which had been prepared under the direction of V. Burgevin Hyatt, construction foreman. Inscribed on the stone was "N. Y. A. 1939". This inscription had been done by Bill Carver and Bob Eck, two of the NYA youths on the job.

Presents Mrs. Roosevelt
W. D. Phelps, co-ordinator for the center, presented Mrs. Roosevelt. After briefly commenting on the project Mrs. Roosevelt took a trowel which was a product of two youths of the center and proceeded to display her skill as a "mason."

The trowel with which she spread the mortar was given by Henry Smith and Joe Battaglia, who from a piece of steel fashioned and tempered it. After the ceremony Mrs. Roosevelt was presented with the trowel.

Mrs. Julia A. Leavcraft, chairman of the local advisory committee, presided at the ceremony, welcomed Mrs. Roosevelt and spoke briefly on the hope for service which the NYA project might produce.

Tells of Aims
Mr. Hesley spoke of the aims and objects of the NYA and stated that through projects such as the Woodstock center it was hoped that many youths of the state might be taught a trade which would be of value in life. He referred to the deep interest which Mrs. Roosevelt had always taken in these projects to aid the young

Controversy Up in Senate; Measure Delayed

Convicts Seize Woman as Hostage, Demand Release

Michigan City, Ind., June 27 (AP)—A group of convicts seized a woman welfare worker who was being shown through Indiana state prison here today and took her to the office of the prison physician. They barricaded themselves there and threatened death to their captive unless they were given guns and their release.

Warden Alfred Dowd called all state police in northern Indiana to the prison, and a close guard was placed about the walls.

Dowd declined to give any information immediately, but from other prison employees it was learned the woman held was Ruth Joiner of Crawfordsville, Ind.

The number of convicts involved in the affair was reported variously as from one to five.

Newburgh Man Fined $50 Following Arrest in City

Charles L. Stevens of 467 Broadway, Newburgh, who was arrested early this morning at Broadway and Liberty street by Officers Fallon and Crowell, was fined $50 after hearing today in city court.

Stevens was held on three charges, driving while intoxicated, for having no certificate of registration and no operator's license. When arraigned, the defendant demanded an immediate hearing and the court consented to dispose of the case at once.

FDR to Keep Powers

Washington, June 27 (AP)—Treasury experts said today President Roosevelt would retain some powers over the value of gold even if the House accepts the Senate vote against extending his authority formally to devalue the dollar.

The experts said they believed the President could repeat the devaluation procedure followed throughout 1933 before the dollar value of gold was formally raised from $20.67 to $35 per ounce on January 31, 1934.

Reports on Cancer Cures

Oslo, Norway, June 27 (AP)—A report that hundreds of cancers have been cured by half-million-volt X-rays after weaker X-rays had failed was made to the Northern Society for Medical Radiology here today by Dr. Albert Solland of Los Angeles.

He reported on 10 years work with half-million-volt rays at the Los Angeles Tumor Institute. This curative effects on human beings, he said, is not explained by any of the usual experiments with X-rays.

90 Nurses Ill

New York, June 27 (AP)—An outbreak of disease among nurses at Mt. Sinai Hospital has been diagnosed as dysentery and the number of cases has reached 90, City Sanitary Superintendent William H. Best reported today. The first cases appeared over the week-end at the same time that 500 school children on Staten Island, miles away, were stricken with food poisoning. There was no apparent connection.

Missing Salesman Can't Be Located

Lawrence J. Carroll, Who Left Car at Milton, Is Object of Search

Efforts of State Police to locate a missing salesman and musician who abandoned his car near Milton Friday so far have been without success.

The missing man, identified as Lawrence J. Carroll, 26, a salesman for the J. B. Farnum Hardware Co. of Woonsocket, R. I., and who played three nights a week in the largest band in Providence, R. I., abandoned the car, which was out of gas, about 12:30 Friday morning, saying that he was going home. Up to this morning no further trace has been had of him excepting the fact that Friday afternoon a r-r answering his description stopped at the Willow Tree Inn and also asked the agent at the Marlborough railroad station about the price of a ticket to Boston. When told the price he said that he did not have enough money.

Carroll's parents drove up to Milton Sunday in search of information regarding their son and Monday Rhode Island police broadcast a general alarm. The young man is said to have been working hard of late and possibly is suffering from amnesia.

Holidays in Doubt

New York, June 27 (AP)—Saturday holidays during July and August for upwards of 40,000 brokerage house employees were in doubt today as members of the New York Stock Exchange debated a five-day week for the vacation period, and possible lengthening of trading hours Mondays through Fridays. Governors of the exchange have been sounding out members preliminary to making a decision tomorrow afternoon. Most New York city banks have decided to adopt the short week for the next two months.

Stocks Took Heavy Drop on Monday

Stocks took their heaviest loss on the New York Exchange since June 15 as traders apparently followed the cue of foreign markets and gave attention to the increasingly unfavorable condition of affairs in the Far East as well as in Central Europe. Industrial issues as measured in the Dow-Jones averages opened up considerably under Saturday's closing prices and showed increasing losses for the day, final prices being 2.27 points, to 135.09. Rails were off .49 for the day to 27.27 and utilities declined 0.60 point, to 23.45. The London market was easier and industrial and rail issues showed a loss for the day. Amsterdam Bourse reflected the rising political tension. Paris closed irregular with trading inactive.

The commodity index dropped 0.16 point as staple markets showed a lower trend. A rally in grains, sugar, rubber was offset by drops in cottonseed oil, hides and tallow. Cotton futures rallied in late trading, closing for points higher to two lower. After an early dip wheat futures closed strong, the Chicago price being 1/4 cent a bushel to 1-8 higher. Spot raw sugar sold at the 2.85 level.

Outstanding feature of domestic news, which came about at the close of the market, was announcement that the Senate had amended the administration monetary bill, eliminating the President's power to devalue the dollar, raising the price to be paid for domestic silver to 75.57 cents an ounce, from 64.64 and withdrawing authorization for the U. S. Treasury to buy foreign silver. The bill had already passed the House and the action came as an amendment to the conference and if agreement is reached must be approved by the President. The Senate's action is cheerful news for domestic producers, including Sunshine Mining, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda Copper Mining Corp. and other smaller producers. Among large foreign producers, not so well pleased, were U. S. Smelting & Refining, New York Honduras & Rosario Mining, Consolidated Mining & Smelting, Howe Sound, Cerro de Pasco.

An upturn in buying of new cars and trucks is looked for during the period preceding July 4 that will bring the June total back to seasonal level, following slump early in the month.

The operating income of all Class 1 carriers for May, on the basis of reports from 52 roads, is estimated at $23,000,000, compared with $16,496,701 a year ago. Would give a net loss of $20,000,000 compared with deficit of $25,502,501 in May, 1938.

Phelps Dodge will probably show earnings of around 84 cents a share for the first half of the year, compared with 76 cents in the first half of 1938. United Fruit will probably cover annual dividend rate of $4, judged from earnings this quarter, which are well above a year ago and are expected to exceed the favorable first quarter.

Portuguese railway companies are contemplating purchase of $50,000,000 worth of new rolling stock. It is stated that the Export-Import Bank has made a commitment to finance such a purchase, with probability that the orders will be placed for American equipment.

The Turkish government has purchased 50 training planes, to cost approximately $1,000,000, from Curtiss-Wright Corp.

Steel operations for this week are scheduled at 54.3 per cent of capacity, a drop of 0.7 point from last week.

Stocks Took Heavy Drop on Monday

New York, June 27 (AP)—Rallying power was feeble in today's stock market and leading issues exhibited ragged trends throughout.

An attempted opening advance failed to follow through and prices soon began to slip. There was a later recovery, but this too lacked support. Near the final hour market irregularity was the rule. Dealings were slack the greater part of the time, with transfers for the five hours at the rate of approximately 500,000 shares.

Wall Street seemed highly confused over Washington developments including the action of the Senate in voting down the President's devaluation authority, boosting the price of domestic silver and halting purchases of the foreign metal. While some considered these moves bullish market, most inclined to go easy on the buying side in view of the fact the House might insist on backing up its previous approval of extending the Chief Executive's devaluing power which is to expire June 30.

Although a slightly better tone was observed in foreign news, happenings on the home front apparently overshadowed events abroad. European markets did not move, but the London bar silver price was down, the equivalent of about 1 1/2 cents per ounce.

Bonds shifted in varying directions and commodities were mixed. Resistant stocks included Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, J. C. Penney, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, U. S. Rubber and Westinghouse.

Backward were American Telephone, U. S. Gypsum, Anaconda, American Smelting, Eastman Kodak, Loft and Alcoa. Reduction.

Hesitant in the curb were aluminum of America, Aluminum Ltd., N. Y. Honduras Rosario and American Gas.

Durham Cathedral Owes Site to Vagrant Dun Cow

Durham cathedral, one of the oldest in Britain, owes its site to the wanderings of a lost dun cow. A mild, plump beast, she still looks on from a sculptured panel outside the Nine Altars chapel, commemorating the divine incident that told a group of bewildered monks where to build their church.

The legend goes that the monks, carrying the body of St. Cuthbert, came to a place where the body stuck fast and resisted all efforts to budge it. It was as though some magnetic force had clamped it to the ground. "Which strange and unforeseen accident produced great astonishment in the hearts of the monks," says an old chronicler, "whereupon they fasted and prayed three days with great devotion, to the knowledge from God what to do with the holy body."

The revelation came. It happened that a woman passed in search of her lost cow and they heard another woman shout to her that it was "in Dunholme." So the monks went there and set up "a little Church of Wands and Branches." Such was the founding of Durham cathedral in A. D. 887.

Mrs. Roosevelt at Woodstock Rites

Folks of the country, and thanked her for giving of her time to visit Ulster county and aid in the ceremony.

Following the placing of the stone in position Mrs. Roosevelt said that it was a pleasure to pay a visit to the center. She held out great hopes for the project. This and similar centers throughout the state would give to the boys and girls an opportunity for real work experience. She said that old ideas might be applied to modern conditions but it was doubtful if such old ideas would solve the modern problem. There were difficult problems ahead and she hoped that the young men and women might through NYA aid be better able to face the changing world and changing problems.

Heiselman Attends

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman was present and spoke briefly on the leasing of the land for the project. He welcomed Mrs. Roosevelt to Ulster county and said that he believed there was definite need for vocational training of youth. It was for that purpose that the city administration lent its co-operation and was willing to supply the land for the center. He said he would lead to Mr. Hesley and his staff all co-operation so that the youths sent to the centers might have every advantage. He referred to the new vocational school in Kingston which will give to the city youths here an opportunity of learning a trade.

Completion of the leaders

He expressed the belief that more skilled workmen were needed in this age when the unskilled man found it difficult to secure work. Mayor Heiselman said that he had learned of the custom of serving "hot dogs" to royal guests at the Roosevelt home and suggested that in Kingston was being made the finest "hot dogs" to be found anywhere. He told of the First Packing Company plant which gives employment to 225 local people and said of their big products were "hot dogs." Mayor Heiselman suggested to Mrs. Roosevelt that in future she ask for First Formost "hot dogs" by name.

How Elizabeth Ate 'Dog'

Not to be outdone Mrs. Roosevelt turned and told of the recent visit of the King and Queen of England who were guests at a "hot dog" roast at the Roosevelt Estate at Hyde Park. The Queen had been served with a frankfurter roll. She found difficulty in negotiating the American custom of eating "hot dogs" because "her mouth was so small, but she solved the problem by removing the hot dog from the roll and eating them separately," said the genial hostess from Hyde Park.

Local Death Record

The funeral of Clarence Abram Hendricks, who died suddenly, June 24, was held privately from the residence of Mrs. Josephine McCullough, 270 West Chestnut street, this afternoon. Services were conducted by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Reformed Church. Mr. Hendricks was formerly of Kingston, had resided for 10 years at St. Petersburg, Fla. Surviving are his wife, formerly Elizabeth McCullough; two sons, Clarence Philip and William McCullough Hendricks; one grandson, Clarence Philip Hendricks and an aunt, Mrs. Howard O. Newman of Passa Grille, Fla. Burial will be in Wiltwyck cemetery.

The funeral of Margaret A. Lundy was held from her late residence at Esopus Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock and at the Sacred Heart Church, Esopus, 10 o'clock, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. Martin R. Leddy, C. S. S. R. The funeral was very large and there was a profusion of flowers and many Mass cards, silent tokens of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Sunday evening Father Leddy, assisted by the Altar Society and friends present, recited the Rosary. The casket bearers were James Hart, Edward Davey, John Kearney and George Dummer. The interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, Father Leddy giving the final absolution as the remains were laid to rest.

Clinton B. Wilcox, for the past 20 years a milk inspector for the Dairyman's League, died at his home, 62 Linderman avenue, Kingston, on Monday. Funeral services will be held at the late home on Thursday at one p. m., followed by burial in the Warwick Cemetery. Surviving are his wife, Frank Ann Wilcox, a son, Martha Henry and an aunt, Minnie A. Wilcox. The deceased had been a resident of Kingston for about a year, coming here from Rome, N. Y. He was a native of Morris, N. Y. A veteran of the World War, he was a private in the Quartermasters Corps, 308 Remount, Fort Hancock, N. J., and a member of Hoffman Lodge, No. 412, F. & A. M., Middletown, N. Y., Middletown Lodge 1097, B. P. O. E. and Walkill Engine Co. No. 6 of Middletown.

Egbert C. Johnson died at his home, 99 Gage street, Monday noon after a brief illness. Mr. Johnson, or "Eck," as he was popularly known, was connected with the baggage department of the West Shore Railroad for about 30 years, retiring some years ago. He was widely known among patrons of the railroad. Born in Kingston, he had resided here all his life. Mr. Johnson is survived by his wife, who was Susan A. Elmendorf; one son Andrew D., of this city, who also is connected with the West Shore Railroad and two daughters, Mary E. Johnson of Poughkeepsie and Mrs. Ethel Burnett of Springfield, Mass. The funeral will be held from the funeral home of Ernest A. Kelly, 111 West Chester street, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., with interment in Mt. Zion cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral parlors this afternoon and evening.

Borrower's Angle Presented On President's New Program

Tells His Story

Playboy William P. Buckner, Jr., (above) was debonair as he took the stand in a New York federal court to tell his side of the story in his trial—with four others—on charges of having attempted to defraud the holders of defaulted Philippine railway bonds. Buckner is a nephew of Thomas A. Buckner, president of the New York Life Insurance Co.

(Editor's note: President Roosevelt's proposed $3,800,000,000 lending program is designed to stimulate business and employment, but what would it mean from the borrower's angle? The Associated Press presents a preview of how the program might operate. This article deals with the local public works and express highway features.)

By IRVING PERLMETER
Washington, June 27 (AP)—If your town wants to build a new hospital or sewer system at cheap interest rates, President Roosevelt has a proposition for you.

He proposed last week a $3,800,000,000 federal lending program in which he earmarked $350,000,000 for loans to localities and $750,000,000 for investment in toll bridges, highways and other self-liquidating projects.

The loans to localities are similar to the old public works program in both procedure and cost, but there's no free money in it. In lieu of the 45 per cent grant which the town formerly could get from PWA, Mr. Roosevelt offers a straight loan of the whole cost. However, he slashes the interest rate from the PWA standard of 4 per cent to as low as 2 per cent—or even less, depending on how long it will take to pay back the money.

No Fixed Interest
No fixed interest rate is contemplated. The President wants to lend money at approximately the interest rates available to the treasury on its direct borrowing, which ranges all the way from 2 1/2 per cent on 12-14 year bonds to nothing on three-month bills. The President suggested lending $150,000,000 in the year beginning July 1 and another $200,000,000 in the succeeding year. As the first borrowers repaid some of the money, it would be available for lending again.

Projects mean jobs, and that's one reason why the President suggested them. PWA officials figure that they have given directly 1,840,000 hours of work at wages totaling $1,413,000,000. But for every hour's work at the site of the project, PWA research indicates, factory workers making the materials get 2 1/2 hours' labor.

The express highway feature of the President's program is newer and less is known about it, except that it grew out of a proposal of former Senator Bulkley (D., Ohio) and others to build six superhighways across the country. The Bureau of Public Roads, in a 212-page report, turned thumbs down on superhighways clear across the country but said there were some important highway jobs done that looked as if they might pay for themselves.

Boston to Washington
The bureau suggested the most likely route to try, because of traffic and road conditions, would be from Boston to Washington. Parts of this route are almost certain to be included in the program.

Toll roads date back to colonial days, but in recent years the states have tried to build as much free mileage as possible. The toll road idea recurs now because of the opportunity to put men to work building them and the thought that the toll system might make available in the next few years needed improvements which otherwise might not be financially possible for a long time.

Toll bridges and tunnels and other self-paying highway projects are on the program. Through a new corporation, probably to be known as the federal toll authority, the government would build the roads and collect the tolls itself until the cost was paid off.

A toll rate of one cent a mile for passenger cars and 3.5 cents for each truck has been termed reasonable by the bureau of public roads. A thousand-mile toll trip in a passenger car, for instance from Washington to Omaha, Neb., would cost $10.

In addition to tolls, profits from the sale of land along the new right-of-ways also would be used to finance the construction.

ECONOMY IS LEGAL

The Court of Appeals has held unconstitutional the budget adopted by the Republican Legislature. The ruling was on substituting lump sums in place of itemized appropriations and was not on the effort to reduce the budget. The State's highest tribunal did not rule that the economy effort was illegal. It was the method of achievement that was ruled upon by the court. With this in mind, the Republican legislators should hold fast to their economy course. If the harassed taxpayers are to be relieved of further tax burdens, the legislators will have to preserve their economy cuts.

The Legislature in its stand for retrenchment will have the wholehearted support of the taxpayers with the exception of the pressure and spend and tax groups. The Republican lawmakers had a tough struggle in cutting the all-time record high budget and their efforts have been greatly appreciated by the taxpayers who foot the bills. With the confidence that the people of the state, excepting those on the public payrolls, approve of their economy policy, the Legislature should continue the fight in the special session. Their accomplishments to date are a source of justifiable pride for the Republican Party.

By reducing estimates for various departments as contained in Governor Lehman's budget, the highest in all history, and by rejecting new taxes, the Legislature spared the people of the state two additional tax levies, that would have proved a heavy burden. One was a tax of a dollar on a thousand assessed valuation on all real estate and the other a tax on business transactions, which would have further hurt business and increased unemployment.

The Legislature has a perfect right to reduce appropriations recommended by the Governor and in doing so they are carrying out the wishes of the majority of the taxpayers. In providing economy, the Republicans will increase their influence in large measure. The taxpayers want only the service they can afford. Reductions in the cost of government are absolutely necessary and now is the time to put them in effect, the spenders to the contrary and notwithstanding.

QUINT PENOLOGY

Dr. Dafoe, it appears, doesn't spank his little girls, and doesn't let anybody else do so. Nurses and teachers are required to use reason rather than force.

And what is "reason" in this model kindergarten? "When the girls are naughty," the doctor explains, "we just make them sit alone for a while. That works well."

Ostracism or isolation is a natural and severe punishment for social-minded people—and nearly all of us, good or bad, have social instincts. We try it often in our prisons. Solitary confinement is usually the last resort in the case of a rebellious and troublesome prisoner.

But often it doesn't work with grown-ups. Maybe that is because the procedure started too late in life. A little "sitting alone" in childhood, imposed not in anger but as a natural result of unsocial conduct, might accomplish more than a great deal of it later on.

SOAP-BUBBLER

Robert F. Warham of Oakland, Cal., is "forever blowing bubbles." He has been at it now for more than twenty years and believes a recent achievement makes him the world's champion soap bubble blower. He blew a bubble seven feet in diameter.

This is not all he has done with his hobby. He has invented a machine, the only one of its kind, which has twelve mechanically operated puppets. When the machine is in operation these little figures continually dip their pipes into soap suds and proceed to blow bubbles. The result is said to be a symphony not only of bubbles but of charming effects of reflected images and lights.

Mr. Warham knows all about the correct air conditions for fine bubble-making. When the air is dry, dust particles are likely to penetrate the bubble walls. Then the bubble bursts quickly and the fun is spoiled. He counteracts this danger by placing a pan of steaming water under the growing bubble, which can then expand to its fullest and hold its shape and beauty.

So far this is just a hobby with the Californian. He experiments with bubbles for the fun of it and to see how much he can do with them. He likes to attend hobby shows and display his skill. Some day, however, he thinks he may make bubble blowing his means of support, taking his puppets and his giant bubbles on the stage.

PLACE-NAMES

New York State boasts of a community called Painted Post, and there are plenty of odd and startling names in the western states. But Missouri seems to have more than its quota of them. A new mail service route announced by the Postoffice Department includes Brushy, Bunch Corner, Midridge, Bunker, Watch Tower, Rat Junction, Pioneer Camp and Beatons Box. And the mail carrier of that route is named Regal Gant.

People may laugh at such titles, and sensitive residents may want to change them, but they're all right. They help to brighten a dull and monotonous world. Even Rat Junction may be, to a discriminating traveler, a grateful relief after passing through scores of Ridgevilles, Smithfields, Jonesboros, and so on. There's a lift of the spirit when the motorist plunges into an Old Bridge or Caribou or Blue Earth or Blooming Prairie or Horse Lick or Kickapoo or Locust Gap or Elsiecoal or Dover-Foxcroft.

A statistician says our national crime bill is $15,000,000,000 a year. We might pay off our national debt by paying the criminals $5,000,000,000 a year not to commit any crimes.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

 PREVENT DEATHS FROM APPENDICITIS

When a large city, Philadelphia, decided to lessen the death rate from appendicitis, the simple suggestions to the citizens when they had "stomach ache" lasting more than an hour or two were, (a) call a doctor, (b) eat no food, (c) take no purgative. By following these simple rules the death rate from appendicitis was so greatly reduced that other cities and municipalities are now making similar drives against this dangerous ailment.

Recently, one of our largest insurance companies started a campaign to prevent deaths from appendicitis and as it has branches throughout the entire world, thousands of lives should be saved yearly. "It may be only a stomach ache, but if you want to be safe, call a doctor. Remain quiet and apply an ice bag to the abdomen. Do not take a laxative, food, or medicine. These simple rules are based on sound medical experience, reinforced by a recent study of health authorities."

It has been found that self treatment is responsible for a large number of deaths and most of these could be prevented by calling a doctor and receiving surgical care when needed.

"The appendicitis survey shows that in a group of appendicitis patients among those who received no laxatives only one died out of 64. When one laxative was taken, the deaths were one out of 18, while among those who received more than one dose, one death occurred in 11 patients."

The study also revealed that when patients did not enter hospital for two or three days after an attack, the death rate was three times as great as among patients who were admitted to hospital within the first 24 hours."

The advice to call the doctor and give no laxatives, food, or medicine of any kind can be followed by everyone even should ice to put on the abdomen not be available.

Remember, any persistent pain in the abdomen may be due to appendicitis, so that the above suggestions should be followed in all such cases.

The "usual" symptoms are pain in the pit of the stomach which gradually moves down to lower right side of abdomen and stays there.

Mrs. Martha J. Bedford died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, on Stephan street.
 Donald Davenport Tetley and Miss Dorothy Dusenberry Towner married in Middletown in Grace Episcopal Church.

Woodstock Playhouse opened for season with the play "Emperor Jones" with Charles S. Gilpin, noted negro actor, in leading role.

Oklahoma City, Okla., (AP)—Walter Marlin, assistant county attorney in charge of prosecuting forgery cases, says styles in forgery slang are undergoing some "streamlining." Here are some of the 1939 forgers' terms: A "stiff" is a large check written by a forger on a big corporation. Passing a check is "playing a stiff." A "paper hanger" is any person who practices the art of passing worthless and forged checks and worthless stocks, bonds and deeds to property.

Las Vegas, N. M., (AP)—When forest fires broke out on Falls Creek, Dick Galt, assistant forest supervisor, says the deer didn't act according to wildlife lore. "Deer are supposed to be afraid of fire and flee from it," he said. "Not so in this case. The deer came up to the flames, gazed at them, nosed around and then wandered away apparently unafraid of the crackling fire."

A TOUGH ONE TO BEAT

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 26—Robert Brown and Dick Barrett of New York spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. Brown's grandmother, Mrs. Jane Stubble. The young men, who are students in the engineering school of Cooper Union, came up the river by canoe, camping out at night and taking four days for the trip to Kingston where they hiked to Shokan Friday night. They left Monday on their canoe trip back to the city. Robert, who is an honor graduate of Kingston High School, is supplementing his studies in chemical engineering by working in the paint laboratory of the Standard Oil Company on Long Island.

Callers here Sunday included James Faraher and family of Brooklyn. The Farahers, who formerly occupied one of the Carolyn Lasher bungalows on the Ashokan mountain, hope to return for a vacation stay some time in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Sickler of Van Stenburgh Road attended the card party given by the Women's Republican Club Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Rapid progress has been made on the new home of Emil Brunner, noted New York photographer, the exterior of smooth-faced cement blocks and wood being nearly completed. The building is located on the steep bank across the mountain road from the Frank DeSilva place along the north boulevard, and is but a few yards distant from the Indian statues scattered by Mr. Brunner.

Homor Terwilliger, well known ice cream maker and war veteran of Kingston, was numbered among the callers in the hub of the Ashokan country Friday. Mr. Terwilliger reports that his comrade, Lester Elmendorf, is getting along well, following an attack of illness.

Saturday, June 26, 1932, Jonathan Ennist and Catherine Dubois were married here by the Rev. Samuel Harlow, a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church. The couple, both of whom were members of well known Shokan families, for many years made their home on the north side of the Plank Road in old Shokan. Dependents of Mr. and Mrs. Ennist include Mrs. Ennist, Quaden of Kingston and Jay Ennist of Highland.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Coleman of New York city were guests recently at the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyler.

Homor Markle, Jr., has been doing some interior decorating at the big cow barn of Harry Bailey at Beechford Farms. White enamel paint was used on the walls and other woodwork, the color scheme thus harmonizing with the aluminum stanchions which form a part of the equipment at this famed North Olive dairying center.

Jansen Preston, formerly of Kingston, was caller in the village center. Mr. Preston studied engineering at Yale, graduating with the Sheffield School Class of 1911.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Van Stenburgh include Mrs. Barbara Phillips and daughter, Genevieve, and the Misses Anna and Genevieve Rhinehart, all of Mineola, L. I.

Baker Brothers, Kingston lumbermen who have a sawmill near the Olive-Marbletown line, are engaged in clearing work in the woods along the north boulevard at the local entrance to the Catskill Park. It is reported that two stone bungalows will be erected there by a Washington man. The property, which at more elevated points along the Boiceville hill road commands a beautiful view of the extreme north end of the Ashokan Reservoir as well as many towering peaks of the southern Catskills, has for many years been held by a development company.

Climbing hills before we come to them is what makes us tired.

Scouts to Travel To World's Fair

Scouts and Scouters numbering 160 from the Ulster-Greene Council will attend the World's Fair on June 29, which is Boy Scout Day at the fair. The National Council predicts that there will be at least 30,000 Scouts at the fair on this day. It is expected that this gathering will be the largest get-together of Scouts ever held.

The previous record was set at the Washington Jamboree with 27,800 scouts. The troops which will have representatives going are: Troops No. 3, 6, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

The camp staff has been selected with care so that they may give the scouts an unusual camping experience and provide the chance to advance in rank during their stay in camp. The members of the camp staff are: Howard Mosher, camp director; Edward Sylvester, waterfront director; Wayne Wiseman, camp chef; unit masters, John Snyder, Nelson Keables and Clifford Van Valkenburgh; junior officers, Thomas Wayne, William Buhl, George Otis, George Norton and Herbert Solomon. These men will be in camp Tuesday, June 27, to have everything in readiness for the scouts by Sunday, July 2.

Camp Halfmoon is divided into three sections. The Rangers for the younger boys, the Indian Village for the middle, and the Pioneer unit for the older Scouts. Each of these groups will have the opportunity to specialize in the different fields of scouting. The following troops have registered boys for the season:

Troop No. 40, Athens, two scouts; 37, Catskill, two scouts; 38, Saugerties, four scouts; 12, Kingston, six scouts; 43, Cairo, three scouts; 34, Woodstock, two scouts; 46, West Hartford, Conn., two scouts; 7, Kingston, one scout; 11, Kingston, seven scouts; 42, Greenville, two scouts; 72, Marlborough, four scouts; 63, West Shokan, six scouts; 44, Catskill, three scouts; 75, Gardner, two scouts; 73, Milton, eight scouts; 62, Pine Hill, two scouts; 6, Kingston, 16 scouts; 26, Port Ewen, four scouts; 70, Highland, 20 scouts; Floral Park, one scout; 28, Ellenville, six scouts.

These scouts and the others, who will be registering, will bring the registration to a good representation from the troops in the council.

If Senate Action Prevails, the Dollar Will Be Subject to Attack by Foreign Speculators

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 27—Small wonder the stock market was nervous Monday afternoon. The United States Senate was busy voting in and out of the statutes legislation affecting not only the monetary units of the American dollar, but the monetary relations of the United States with the rest of the world.

What the Senate has done can yet be changed by the conference committee of the House and Senate, but for the time being the action taken in withdrawing from the President the power to stabilize the dollar in relation to other currencies gives the financial members of the world from Wall Street to Shanghai exactly what they have been hoping for—a victory over the 24-hour basis operation of the treasury department here.

For several years now American trade has been protected and the American dollar has been fortified against speculative invasions by the world gamblers of Paris and London. Nobody knew in advance what the treasury would do with its stabilization fund, or what it might do with respect to the narrow margin of ten points available as flexibility in dollar stabilization.

If the Senate action prevails, the dollar will be subject to attack by foreign speculators. Trade agreements can be adversely affected and much injury done to America's economic position while the present or future administration waits on the congress to grant power to do something to stabilize the dollar. The important point, hitherto, about fixing the dollar's valuation through executive action has been to put the American government on terms of equality with parliamentary governments which can take instant action. If a special session of congress now has to be convened or action has to be taken at a regular session, the speculation over the price at which the dollar's value is to be fixed will give the speculators the chance they have long been eager to get.

Whether the president as an individual should have the power to revalue the dollar, or whether a national monetary commission composed of experts shall have this power delegated to it by congress is something wholly unrelated to the question of whether the dollar's value should be rigidly fixed or left open within a certain number of points, as at present, so that America can protect her position as against foreign incursions in the trade and monetary world.

The fact that America can devalue instantly has a salary effect on those countries who may think advantage would come to them through another currency depreciation war. To announce to the world that the monetary power in the United States is in a straightjacket and to do so within three days of the time the existing stabilization power expires is to invite nervousness in the financial and trade markets of the world.

The impression prevails here that within the next 24 hours the administration and its opponents on Capitol Hill—the silver bloc—will come to terms. The silver bloc wants a bigger subsidy than the silver producers now getting. Silver's world price is about 43 cents an ounce owing to American government support and were it not for the American government's policy of creating a demand for newly mined silver by offering to buy it at about 64 cents an ounce as well as by buying foreign silver, the world market price might fall to 20 cents.

The senators from silver-producing states wanted the administration to agree to boost the domestic silver price from 64 cents to 77 cents, but the increase in subsidy was refused. A coalition was then made combining the votes of the silver state senators with those conservative Republicans who want the power of stabilization or devaluation taken from the president. This alliance not only brought about the defeat of the devaluation provision sought by the president, but enabled the senators to get their 77 cent price written into the bill for "trading" purposes, together with a proviso that the treasury shall buy no more foreign silver. This means that when the bill gets into conference—the house already having passed the bill as desired by the president—the silver state senators will say in effect: "Give us a better price than 64 cents for silver and we will support your devaluation power proposal."

This is the way things are done in the Congress of the United States—every group for itself, each combination of producers seeking whatever advantage it can get by pooling its strength with other producers. Small wonder the Townsend plan is gaining such momentum, especially when voters generally see that selfishness is the principal characteristic of modern legislative operations.

Democracy goes to excesses this way until public opinion takes an interest and expresses its protest and vehement disapproval. Such disapproval will be manifest as the organized effort to force the price of silver up is widely understood. As between silver and gold, silver, however, due to currency uncertainties, and payment of the silver bonus demanded by the western senators, the latter is of course the less expensive in the long run. For the silver subsidy will be dealt with like all other subsidies some day when the people as a whole discover they are using up their own substance and not some imaginary people's earnings.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdoch, veteran marine engineer.

No. 97—Union

As is quite often the case, data concerning many of the early steamboats that played a part in the history of steamboat transportation, is not too complete—and thus the record of the steamboat "Union" cannot be wholly ascertained. Being one of the vessels that appeared when steamboating was still in its infancy, the "Union" is probably somewhat of an unsung hero, and yet she occupied her place in the history of the Hudson river.

The wooden hull of the "Union" was built by Bishop and Simonson of New York in the year 1833, but the records fail to show the name of the builder of her engine. The available dimensions portray her as a vessel measuring 124 feet long, 24 feet wide, depth of hold eight feet, and a gross tonnage rating of 201. From these dimensions it can be seen that the Union was a small-size vessel used for passenger service.

The "Union" was taken east soon after she was launched, and she ran the greater part of the season of 1834 on the short route between Norwich, New London and Saybrook where connections were made with the Hartford steamboat "New England" for New York. Her maximum speed was established at 14 miles per hour.

A man by the name of Bullock, writing in the "Connecticut Magazine," refers to the "Union": "The first steamboat excursion that ever went out from Norwich went out on the 'Union' on July 27, 1834, when 370 people were taken down the Thames and to Stonington Point."

The "Union" plied this route for a bit less than a year, and was next heard of in New York waters. When the People's Line established its first night line on October 31, 1834, the "Union" ran in line with the steamboat "Westchester," the former under the command of Captain Reynolds and the latter in charge of Captain A. P. St. John. The "Union" was in service on this Albany-New York route for sometime and was then replaced by the steamboat "Emerald."

In the years that followed, the "Union" was a familiar sight on the waters of the Hudson river, operating on numerous short routes. In 1838 she was in service between Peekskill, Sing Sing, and New York.

The last service of note recorded in the history of the steamboat "Union" pertains to the incident when Dr. Kane, in command of the small brig "Advance," started out in search of Sir John Franklin. The "Union," carry members of the Grand Lodge of Masons of New York, followed Dr. Kane's brig "Advance" down the bay for 20 miles. An account of this event states, "Noon had been counted out on the clocks of the city for May 31, 1853, when the party came out to bid the intrepid Dr. Kane a hearty God-speed. The "Titan," a powerful tug, had been gratuitously offered to tow the "Advance" out to sea. When the beautiful big flag, with a compass and square and the accompanying letter G, had been hauled up to the yard, the signal was given and the expedition begun."

Just what happened to the steamboat "Union" after this incident described in the preceding paragraph, is not known. Records give no indication of the period of service that the "Union" gave following this incident, and therefore the date which marked the end of this vessel's career is unknown.

CREEK LOCKS

Creek Locks, June 27—Mr. and Mrs. Dugan and family are here from New Jersey for the week.

Miss Jean Hennessey graduated from St. Joseph's school Sunday. Mrs. J. Ebers has her bungalow rented for the season. Mrs. Emma Dession has bought over the old homestead of Miss Sara LeFevre.

Mrs. A. Mowle and son, Ralph, also Miss Eva Lukas and brother, McLaren, motored to Kingston Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm and son and Mrs. Spritzer, all of Brooklyn, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Melos for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller of Brooklyn are spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Vogt of Creek Locks.

Mrs. Butler and daughter, Miss Ileana McLaren motored to Tannersville Wednesday.

High School Seniors Celebrate Annual Class Day Ceremonies

Class Day exercises were observed in the traditional style of good-natured fun and quips as the class of 1939 gathered last evening for the last good time together before the more solemn ceremonies of commencement at 8:15 o'clock this evening at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

The 314 members were seated on the stage, again wearing their caps and gowns. The music for the procession was played by Miss Joan Craig and Class President William Cole presided over the frolic.

The address to the faculty was given by Irwin Thomas. Although according to its title it was thought to be of a more serious nature than other speeches listed, it was colored with the banter that was prevalent throughout the program. In conclusion, however, Irwin Thomas expressed the gratitude and appreciation of the members of the graduating class to the faculty of Kingston High School and bid them a formal, serious farewell.

Hyman Wachtel had been chosen as the class poet and read his original poem "On Living," which follows:

Class Poem

On Living

By HYMAN WACHTEL
I live to see the golden spears of dawn,
The exquisite grace of birds on the wing,
The beauty of a mother's face
And the verdure of the spring.
I live to hear the songs of birds,
The pounding of the summer
The gentle voice of summer
And the humming of the bee.
I live to smell the foliage of woods,
The perfume of flowers sweet,
The fragrance of an apple tree,
The earth beneath my feet.
I live to taste the miracles of life
The cherish instants from each year
To gather the splendour and richness
That God has scattered here.

As the house lights went out, into the darkened hall came Miss Helen Schoonmaker as the ghost of the class of 1939. As she related the four-year history of eerie bright light shone directly upon the face of each member of the class as his name was mentioned.

Class Oration

Leaving the frivolous for the serious, Milton Tsitsera, class orator, delivered a stirring address on "Propaganda," telling of how the propagandist "works," and defining propaganda as "an expression of opinions or actions by individuals or groups deliberately designed to influence opinions or actions of others with reference to predetermined ends."

He listed seven common devices of propaganda in which all arts of deception are used, the "name calling," glittering generalities which employ such terms as freedom, liberty, honor; the transfer type in which the propagandist gets the church or nation to back a plan so that the public feels it must endorse it; the "plain folks" propaganda, the "card stacking" device, under-emphasis, over-emphasis and the "band wagon" scheme to make the people follow the crowd.

In closing Mr. Tsitsera urged his fellow classmates that when they go into the world as high school graduates, to beware of propaganda and to control their minds to think unemotionally and clearly.

Class Prophecy

Miss Margaret Farrell was the class prophet. Her prophecy was given in the form of a radio broadcast, modelled on the familiar one from Hollywood. It took place 20 years hence and recounted a reunion of the present graduating class, with imaginations running in predictions for the future.

Miss Lucille Kline was the class critic. She opened the class criticism with the quotation, "Grant me patience, just Heaven: of all can't which are can'ted in the canting world—though the cant of hypocrites may be the worst—the cant of criticism is more tormenting."

Miss Kline read from a book which she had divided into four chapters, namely, "Absurdian Freshmen" or (Freshmen learning their A.B.C.s); "Sophomores in Their Adolescence" or (Freshmen whose voices are changing); "Jactitious Juniors" or (ain't we

Harris Brown in Business 27 Years

Harris Brown, proprietor of Brown's Servicenter on Broadway, will observe his 27th year in the automobile tire business during the month of July. His experience in the tire business dates back to 1905 when he began working in the Albany Vulcanizing Works where he learned the tire trade. In 1912 he opened a tire shop on Downs street and shortly after moved to Broadway in larger quarters.

One of the pioneers in the automobile tire business Mr. Brown at present operates Brown's Servicenter opposite the Central post office where he operates a 24 hour a day service station. During the early days of motorizing tires were far inferior to present day products and vulcanizing and repairs were the larger portion of the business. It was during this period that Mr. Brown coined the slogan, "Brown Sells Good Tires" and later changed the slogan to "If It's Tires—See Brown." For several years Mr. Brown has been local distributor for the U. S. Royal tires and United States Rubber Company products.

As an anniversary inducement to tire purchasers Mr. Brown will give free with each tire purchased during July, a tube. In addition to tires a car washing, lubrication, battery and general service station is operated at the Servicenter. Richfield gas and oil are also handled.

Hit Boy on Bicycle
Joseph Schiskley, 47, of Hudson street reported at police headquarters this morning that his car struck a boy on a bicycle while he was driving on Ravine street. The boy, he said, reported no injuries.

ACCUSED IN TAR AND FEATHER CASE

Ian Montgomery (left) and Alexander Calvert (on horseback) are two of three youths accused by Count Igor Cassini, young Washington chit-chat columnist, of assaulting him near Warrenton, Va. Montgomery and Calvert appeared before a judge and waived hearing to the September term of the Fauquier county, Va., grand jury. Cassini said he was beaten, tarred and feathered by five or six young men.

No Special Term Here Wednesday

There will be no special term of County Court Wednesday because of Judge Traver's illness.

At the Kingston Hospital Judge Traver was reported as recovering nicely from two operations performed last week. Although he is making splendid progress toward recovery, Judge Traver's physicians allow no visitors except immediate members of the family. Last Saturday, the second day after his operation, a visitor against orders of the physicians did visit the room but since then even the judge's friends have not been allowed to visit in order that he might have several days of complete rest. When first admitted to the hospital a preparatory operation was first performed, followed by the second operation last Thursday.

TELLS OF TAR AND FEATHERING

Count Igor Cassini, Washington columnist, seems in jovial spirits as he tells Austine McDonnell, Warrenton, Va., society girl, of an attack in which he said he was tarred and feathered by several youths. Cassini said he was lured away from a dance to which he had escorted Miss McDonnell.

Artists to Vote On WPA Project

Woodstock, June 27—In view of recent discussion in Washington on the advisability of discontinuing the WPA Federal Arts Projects, the executive committee of the Woodstock Artists Association has approved a resolution commending the projects and is sending a copy of the resolution to each member of the organization to vote upon.

The resolution reads in part as follows:

RESOLVED, That the Woodstock Artists' Association commend in principle the work of the Works Progress Administration Federal Arts Projects and endorse their continuation. The motion also is forwarded with the thanks and gratitude of the organization to President Roosevelt, Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, and to Senators James M. Mead and Robert Wagner, at Washington.

The ballots will be counted at a meeting of the executive committee of the association which will be held Friday, June 20, at 5 o'clock.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the resolution will be approved, although with not too great a majority.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. It's this mass that helps a bowel movement.

The common sense thing to do is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast may give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B. All-Bran is not a drug, not a medicine. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

PENNEY'S

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

YESTERDAY: Several terms of the law have been off to jail for creating a disturbance in Dredfather's domain. We flash back to Tacks Adams who is conversing with his Aunt Vera.

Chapter 18

Hound Of Hell

"DEBT?" queried Tacks, stalling. "Love?"

"Debt," confirmed Mrs. Sackville. "Love, two four-letter words each meaning a state of imbecility. Now then, Jonathan, since you seem to be a backward boy, I'll diagnose your case myself. You have far more money than any young scapegrace ought to have. The chances are you're not in debt. Consequently, you must be smitten with some chit of a girl."

Tacks would have liked to advise Mrs. Sackville that no one, not even his blood relations, could refer to Tacks North as a "chit" and get away with it. But, in his wisdom, he perceived that such advice would admit the existence of Tacks. And he distinctly did not want Aunt Vera to know anything about that glamorous young person. Aunt Vera was a self-constituted champion of the Adams name and the Adams rights. Heaven alone knew to what lengths she might go were she to learn that a lady in a night club had taken the heart of her favorite nephew and kicked it all over the Butterfield-3 district.

"Nonsense," he said now, achieving a derisive note. "Why, gee, who would I be in love with? I don't know many girls, and, anyhow—er—um—well, all the girls are away for the summer." It was a weak finish, he realized.

Aunt Vera attended to a practicality before going to work further on Tacks.

"Do you want dessert?" she inquired.

"Gosh, no. I'll have a cup of coffee, though, Black."

Mrs. Sackville touched a small silver bell. Instantly a majestic personage, who looked as if he should have been the Archbishop of Canterbury, entered the room. He was not the Archbishop of Canterbury, however. Dredfather, Mrs. Sackville's butler, would have been affronted to be likened to the Archbishop of Canterbury. Privately, Dredfather, however, when really in form, he could make such as the Archbishop of Canterbury appear frivolous.

"You rang, Madam?" said Dredfather, almost reproachfully. His voice had a deep sonorous quality, like the base notes of an organ. "Certainly, I rang," snapped Mrs. Sackville, who had never allowed herself to be impressed by Dredfather. "No dessert. Coffee for Mr. Adams. And, Dredfather! Where is Lily now?"

Tacks started.

"Do you mean to say," he demanded, "that that terrible dog is here?"

Dredfather replied civilly. But in some miraculous fashion he contrived to get it across that he was treating a loathsome subject.

"The—er—the animal is in the kitchen, Madam. The cook has issued an edict."

"Oh, she has, has she?" barked Mrs. Sackville. "I suppose the cook doesn't like Lily."

Dredfather nodded portentously. "In my judgment that is the case, Madam."

"What did the cook say?"

"The cook desired me to inform you, Madam," said Dredfather, looking down his nose, "that unless the—ah—canine is removed in the near future, she will give notice."

Mrs. Sackville thumped the table. "You tell the cook, Dredfather, that if she doesn't like the way this house is run, she can pack her things and get out."

"Very good, Madam," said Dredfather, bowing.

"Furthermore, I want to see Lily now. Bring her in here, Dredfather."

"Very good, Madam," said Dredfather. He retired with pomp and circumstance.

Longstanding Feud

"NOW why," asked Tacks, "do you insist upon bringing that dog into the city? Might just as well keep a rhinoceros in a ten-room apartment."

"Don't excite yourself," Mrs. Sackville said. "I've only had Lily here over the week-end. She's very old and she likes to be with me." She paused and a fond look came into her eyes. "Ah, here she is now. Come to Mother, lamb."

The door to the kitchen had swung open. And there appeared in the dining-room that which might have dispersed the hosts of the Philistines. It was an enormous Irish wolfhound, shadowy-gray in color, and with a gaunt and spectral aspect. The uninitiated might have been forgiven for concluding that it was merely on vacation from haunting some grim castle in the depths of Ireland. This was Lily and her presence dwarfed the rest of the room. As she stood now licking her chops and revealing large white teeth, her face seemed to assume a grinning expression horrible to behold. Tacks shuddered.

"Here, lamb," invited Mrs. Sackville, brandishing a cracker.

Lily was, in truth, a very ancient Irish wolfhound. However, she was still capable of a clumsy form of animation. Perceiving the crack, she walked with measured tread past Tacks Adams, of whom she had held a low opinion for many years, and sat up on her haunches before Mrs. Sackville. In this position she was vaguely reminiscent of a dinosaur exhibiting company manners.

"Lamb," said Tacks disgustedly. "Imagine calling that mendacious thing 'lamb!'"

Between Tacks and Lily there existed a feud of long standing. It had been Mr. Adams's misfortune to come into Lily's life when he was naught but a grinning adolescent hellbent on mischief. Their first meeting had been fraught with catastrophe. On that occasion Mr. Adams, wholly in a spirit of fun, had decided that Lily's broad sides constituted an indecent waste of advertising space. Wherefore he had tastefully lettered his initials in white paint on the gray background of Lily's coat.

All this was now some dozen years in the past. But when it came to remembering insults Lily could make a bum out of an elephant. She neither forgot nor forgave. She kept up until recently she had made it a practice to nip Mr. Adams on sight. But with the acquiring of the philosophy of the aged, Lily had dropped this fascinating pastime. The world and all its wretchedness was now an open book to her. She realized that exorcism of the Adams breed were as common as Turks in Manhattan. Nip one, and another turns up immediately. Therefore she had come to treat Mr. Adams, when present, as just another stick of furniture. She ignored him completely.

"Lily needs a good walk," Mrs. Sackville said conversationally.

"Um," Tacks said, without interest.

Dredfather now returned, regally bearing Tacks's coffee. Tacks gulped it down and wondered vaguely how he would put in the afternoon. And then, suddenly, Mrs. Sackville settled the question for him.

Wretched Condition

"IF YOU'VE finished your coffee," said Mrs. Sackville briskly, "get your hat. You're taking Lily around the reservoir in the park."

"What?" cried Tacks horrified. "I'm to walk that dog?"

"Precisely."

Tacks gave tongue in a big way. "I refuse. I flatly refuse to be seen in broad daylight with that hideous creature."

"Don't argue with me, Jonathan," said Mrs. Sackville. "You know it's never any use. Come along."

She sailed out of the room and he followed, protesting.

"This—is this terrible," he said. "I'll be conspicuous."

"Oh, stop crying, you big baby!" Mrs. Sackville picked up Tacks's hat and jammed it on his head. Then she secured the person of Lily with a leash. "You keep her on the leash until you get to the reservoir, then let her off. Is that clear? All right. Run along."

She thrust the leash in his hand and pushed him, still protesting, toward the door.

"B—but," Tacks got in a last minute objection, "this is an outrage. The brute's liable to bite some child or scare a horse or..."

"Nonsense!" Aunt Vera opened the door and hurried him through it. "You'll have the time of your life and so will Lily. I'll see you later."

It is one thing to saunter along Fifth Avenue fancy-free and alone. But it is quite another to meander on this same thoroughfare with the feeling that your soul has been sandbagged and attended by something that looks like a cross between Grand Central Station and the Hound of the Baskervilles. Tacks had been perfectly right. He was conspicuous. People craned their necks out of cars and busses to look at him. Pedestrians turned around to gaze after him. A rubberneck bus, filled with tourists of the gaping variety, came along to Tacks's tortured imagination it seemed as if the mahout, speaking loudly through his megaphone, were calling attention to him. He need not have felt so important, however. His part in the show was negligible. The eyes of the citizenry were focused upon what appeared to them, and rightly, as the dog to end dogs.

Seeking to avoid the glaring publicity of the Avenue, Tacks cut across it at Seventy-ninth Street and made for that territory which lies to the rear of the Metropolitan Museum. He presently entered a region thickly infested with mothers, nursemaids, go-carts, small dogs and a wide and variegated assortment of children with and without roller-skates. With glassy and unseeing eyes, he piloted his hound through this jungle, occasionally yips both of derision and respect. From a stable proportion of the snarl-breast of dog that lurked in its fastnesses, he breathed more easily when he had gained the comparative isolation of the walk that leads to the entrance of the reservoir.

With the howling multitudes behind him, Tacks was again free to broom the wretchedness of his condition. As he saw it, his reasons for cheering were about as numerous as antelope in southern New Jersey. Today was Tuesday. On the following Saturday the game of North, South, East and West was scheduled to end amidst lobster and champagne in the hotly-totey part of Long Island. And what sort of a figure, Mr. Adams demanded of Mr. Adams, was he going to cut at that gala affair?

Guests at World's Fair

Thirty-two employees of the Canfield Supply Company enjoyed a trip recently to the World's Fair in a chartered bus. The employees were especially interested in the electrical exhibits, the lighting effects and modern electrical appliances as well as the up-to-date exhibit of the American Radiator Co., which has attracted thousands of visitors. The Canfield group experienced great satisfaction and appreciation of the exhibit. A second delegation of the Canfield group is planning a trip in the near future.

There are two kinds of humorists, those to whom humor is a meal ticket and others who merely crack jokes to prove they are bright, while they work at something else to earn their living. Twenty years ago newspaper humorists were called paragraphers. Today they are known as "columnists." They are called a lot of other things that wouldn't look so well in print. Young humorists soon fall into the habit of writing burlesque, which is the lowest form of humor. When humorists grow old and develop a grouch, they write satire, which is a higher form of humor but had enough. A comedian in vaudeville can get off the same jokes over and over again and people pay to hear him. A newspaper jokesmith must dig up new ones or polish up some of the old ones.

Millionaire Octogenarian—Will you marry me if I have my health rejuvenated?

Sweet Young Thing—I'll marry you, all right, but you leave your health the way it is.

Diner—I say, waiter, the flowers on this table are artificial, aren't they?

Waiter—Yes, sir. That's the worst of running a vegetarian restaurant—if we use real flowers, the customers eat them.

Jones—I think I'll get a radio set for the wife. I would prefer one like yours.

Smith—A very good idea.

Jones—How many controls has it?

Smith (grimacing)—Two. My wife and my daughter.

Slow Down, Men at Work.

Heard over the phone: Jones, Jones, Jones and Company.

Business Man (interrupting secretary)—Never mind crasing this. I'll just write in my corrections.

Salesman (writes sales report)—"I had a very nice visit with him."

Resume Speed!

Minister—You like to go to Sunday School, don't you, Junior?

Junior—Yes, sir.

Minister—What do you expect to learn today?

Junior—The date of the Sunday School picnic.

Many a man is credited with having a cool head when all he has is cold feet.

The celebrated soprano was doing a solo when Junior said to his mother, referring to the conductor of the orchestra:

Junior—Why does that man hit at that woman with his stick?

Mother—He's not hitting at her. Keep quiet.

Junior—Well, then, what's she hollering for?

Sign on the back of an old gentleman who had chronic fainting spells. "If I fall on the street and am taken to the hospital, do not operate. My appendixes have been removed twice already."

It is quite an art to know the exact difference between two words of similar meaning. Freddie did a good job here:

Teacher—Now, Freddie, explain the difference between "sufficient" and "enough."

Freddie—If mother helps me to cake, I get sufficient. If I help myself, I get enough.

People keep busy nowadays—they are either passing the buck or passing the hat.

Miss Dorothy McConnell is assisting in the office of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

Liquor Trial to Begin on July 5

New York, June 26 (Special)—The trial of 10 Ulster county residents, numbered among the 45 under indictment for allegedly defrauding the government of about $15,000,000 in revenues through the operation of large illicit stills in Lloyd, Gardiner, Burnside, Monroe and Newburgh, will begin on July 5 in United States District Court here. The date was set today by Judge Samuel Mandelbaum when 36 of the defendants were arraigned before him by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond Whearty, who is conducting the Orange county investigation.

The investigation arose out of the developments in the case before the grand jury, which declared, in a letter to the governor, that the acts of public officials in Orange county would warrant a general examination.

Among the defendants are Henry and Gus Peplow of Highland, Fred D'Orio of Milton, George Brenner, Highland, Leon Miller, 248 Broadway, Kingston, Joseph All Vechia, Marlborough, Eugene Rhoades, Lloyd, and Earl and Claude Winters of Gardiner.

In addition to a number of stills ranging upwards from 2,000 gallons each, the ring is alleged to have had 11 stills with capacities of 10,000 to 25,000 gallons each. The product, claims the government, was disposed of in several large cities.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Tough Bird
Columbia, S. C.—F. Erlich Thompson and his wife agreed that maybe it was the best. They said that while sitting in their yard they saw a sparrow hotly pursuing a mouse, which ducked into some bushes and escaped.

Duck Pays Off
Elyria, O.—Mrs. William Beal had a duck for dinner, and the duck brought something—A $125 diamond ring lost six weeks ago. Mrs. Beal found it in the duck's gizzard and said she probably had dropped it into a pan of peelings fed to her flock.

One Pitch, Two Hits
Hastings, Neb.—Pitcher Junior Gaston of a Hastings baseball team wound up and tossed his "high, hard one" toward the plate. The pitch was wild. The ball hit Batter Cliff Soucek on the nose, glanced off and broke the middle finger of Catcher Bob Thoesen's throwing hand. The game was called then and there.

Doubly Irate
Minneapolis—William Shapiro, 24, was very irate about motorists who break laws when he was to the city attorney's office to file a complaint against a hit-run driver. Traffic Sergeant Ed Wetherill thought Shapiro's name touched a familiar chord, so he investigated. He found five warrants naming Shapiro for traffic offenses. Shapiro, as he sat in jail awaiting a hearing, was still irate.

Picnic Postponed
The Trinity Methodist Church and Sunday school picnic which was scheduled for Thursday afternoon, June 29, at Hasbrouck Park has been postponed until some future date. The date will be published later.

Nearly two-thirds of all drowning deaths last year in the U.S. occurred from May to August.

Schwab-Smith
On Sunday, June 25, in the First Baptist Church of Pleasantville, N. J., Miss Thelma Leona Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, of Pleasantville, became the bride of Burton William Schwab of this city. The Rev. Otis L. Priddy officiated and Mrs. Esther Stevenson was organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of mauve with a train and a veil. Her veil was bordered and was trimmed with inserts of rose point lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph Carpenter of Atlantic City and Mrs. Fred Carpenter of Kingston. Both wore powder blue net dresses with hoop skirts trimmed with pink velvet and small doll hats of matching blue net trimmed with pink flowers and velvet. The flowers were colonial bouquets of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Fred Carpenter of Kingston was best man for Mr. Schwab. The ushers were Robert Marisca of New Haven, Conn., and Joseph Carpenter of Atlantic City.

Following a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kenmuir, relatives of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Schwab left on a wedding trip after which they will reside in Kingston.

Y. W. Councilors' Meeting
The councilors for the Y. W. C. A. Stay-at-home camp will meet at the association building on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to work out details regarding the program of the camp which will be held for three weeks, beginning July 6, for grade school girls.

The camp is under the direction of Miss Jean Estey and Miss Lillian Ilerman of the Y. W. C. A. staff. The dancing will be in charge of Miss Ottilia Riccobono, and the swimming director will be Miss Patricia Nolan, a junior at Adelphi College, while Miss Mary Staples is arranging for the work in dramatics. Those who will assist as councilors are Miss Betty Hasbrouck, Miss Eleanor Ingalls, Miss Emily Cragin, Miss Mary VanValkenburgh, Miss Betty Dolan, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Margaret Culver, Miss Elizabeth Schoonmaker, Miss Virginia Johnson, Miss Edna Egan, Miss John Brophy, and Miss Jacqueline Brophy.

Enrollment for the camp is now under way and any parent interested may secure details by calling the Y. W. C. A. Girls from nine years of age through freshman year in high school are eligible.

William C. Brophy, Jr., Honored
Mr. and Mrs. William C. Brophy of 35 East Chester street, entered a large number of friends at a lawn party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. McDonough of Mary's avenue, on Sunday afternoon. Lake Katrine

The Lake Katrine P.-T. A. will sponsor a fall fair for the children in the Lake Katrine school. If the weather is favorable the fair will be held on the school grounds on Saturday afternoon, September 16, from 2 till 5 o'clock. The public is invited.

Judges will be on hand to make the awards. The school has been fortunate in securing E. R. Bowler, 4-H Club agent for Ulster county, to judge the pets exhibit, also the fruit and vegetable exhibits.

The fall fair of the Lake Katrine school is motivated by the slogan "Worthwhile People Do Worthwhile Things—Even in Vacation Time," which means that during the summer produce results of some kind which can be exhibited. This includes writings of trips, camping experiences, books read, etc.

There will be awards for cooking, sewing, manual arts, collections, such as scrap books, stamp collections, etc.

The Lake Katrine P.-T. A. encourages the pupils to make exhibits of the fruit of their own work, not their parents' work.

Closing Picnic

The Lake Katrine P.-T. A. closed its year with a community picnic, held on the school grounds on June 16. There was a large attendance and a good time was enjoyed generally. Softball, baseball, Chinese checkers and other games were played during the evening. A delicious supper was served by P.-T. A. members.

How to Display the Flag

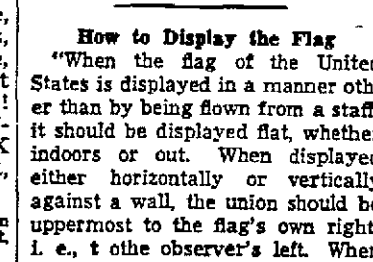

"When the flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street, or to the east, in a north-and-south street."

Buckner Says He Could Get Nothing From Paul McNutt

New York, June 27 (AP)—William P. Buckner, Jr., testified in Federal Court today that Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner of the Philippines, rejected his request for help in having defaulted Philippine railway bonds redeemed, because of "his own political situation."

The debonair young promoter and Broadway playboy, on trial with four others on mail fraud and conspiracy charges, described a meeting with McNutt in Manila in the fall of 1937. Former Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, introduced him.

"I asked him (McNutt) what my chances were," Buckner said. "I asked him if he could help me and he told me he couldn't give me any help, referring to his own political situation."

That was the only time he saw McNutt, he said.

On trial with Buckner are Felipe Buencamino, member of the Philippine legislature; William J. Gillespie and C. Wesley Turner, brokers, and Capt. John Stuart Hyde, Hollywood film producer and former British army officer.

The government charges they defrauded holders of the defaulted bonds by dissipating expense funds raised for a bondholder's protective committee and by rigging the price of the bonds.

Buckner went to the Philippines ostensibly to seek redemption of the bonds. Today, under the questioning of his counsel, John Minton, he said:

"I was vague about what I was going to do in the Philippines. My ideas about Manila was chaotic."

George Schein, counsel for the committee, had spoken of McNutt that was the reason he sought the high commissioner. Hawes was regarded as "certainly the greatest national hero in the Philippines" and attributed this to the former senator's co-authorship of the original Philippine independence bill.

Hawes, he testified, was reluctant to help him.

"First he wanted to be paid," Buckner said, "and second, his health was bad and he wanted to leave the Philippines."

Anglo-Japanese Solution Might End Deadlock

(By The Associated Press)

Prospects grew today that Britain and Japan might find a peaceful solution of their 14-day-old deadlock at Tientsin, which has developed into test of far-reaching importance of Japan's determination and ability to restrict or end altogether special privileges of western powers in China.

On the other oriental fronts: 1. The Japanese navy in Shanghai announced offensives against two more Chinese ports—Fochow and Wenchow—in drive to seal up the coast. It warned the United States and other powers to remove their vessels and declared the ports would be closed to foreign shipping.

2. Japanese warplanes were reported officially in Tokyo to have crossed into Soviet-Russian domain in Outer Mongolia and to have raided an air base as heavy fighting continued on frontiers of Mongolia and Japanese-dominated Manchukuo.

Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador to Japan, awaited word from London while Japan's five-man "inner cabinet" met to discuss Japan's policy toward third powers in China as the stage apparently was being set for negotiations over the Tientsin episode.

With Ear Cocked
Observers in Tokyo expressed belief Japan would enter such conversations with her ear cocked for American reaction because of what they called a strong desire for American friendship.

In Tientsin, meanwhile, conflicting views kept Japan's intentions in doubt. Lieut.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, Japanese army commander there, reiterated Japan's determination to apply increasing pressure "until the British change their attitude." But the consul-general, Shigenori Togo, said Japanese soldiers had been given orders to ease their strict watch on the blockade British concession and that he expected the situation to improve.

Japan set a Thursday deadline for withdrawal of third-power ships from the last two important Chinese coast ports, Fochow and Wenchow.

British authorities retorted with a warning that Japanese would be held responsible for any interference with British shipping or any peril to British lives and properties. Observers in Shanghai expected the United States to take a similar stand.

The Tokyo report of an aerial foray into Outer Mongolia was the first in which the Japanese were known to have crossed the boundary. A report of the attack, quoting an army communiqué, said 98 and "possibly 104" Mongolian planes were destroyed—30 on the ground before the main force of about 200 rose to battle.

Two paragraphs on the second pages of Moscow newspapers described an air battle on the troubled frontier yesterday in which, they said, 25 Japanese combat planes were shot down. A communiqué plainly stated that Soviet forces were involved in the conflict.

Glass Reduces Spoilage
Discomfort of humans and spoilage of show-window goods, caused by the hot rays of the sun, are being reduced by a new type of glass scientists call aldo, which absorbs the infra-red rays that carry approximately one-half of the sun's heat. The glass is being used by merchants to lengthen the lives of their show-window displays by keeping flowers from wilting, bakery goods from spoiling and fabrics from fading, for example. Outer panes of heat-absorbing on sides of a house or office most-exposed to the sun have been found to assist greatly in controlling temperatures and reducing the load on air-conditioning equipment. Railroad companies are using the new glass on coaches to eliminate passenger discomfort caused by the hot sun pouring through car windows.

Livingstone's Tomb
The marble slab on the tomb of David Livingstone, the explorer, bears the following inscription: "Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist. Born March 19, 1813, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire. Died May 4, 1873, at Chitambo's Village, Niala. For 30 years his life was spent in an unwearying effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, and abolish the degrading slave trade of central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: 'All I can say in my solitude is, May Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'"

Trick With a Purpose
They had a stand of steel tubular scaffolding to seat nearly 12,000 people—the largest ever put up in the country—which swayed alarmingly under certain conditions: for instance, when the whole audience rose to "God Save the King." It was, of course, perfectly safe, and intended to vibrate according to the principles of its "special construction." However, says Sir Barry, "we arranged for the band to play one or two false starts for the national anthem, which had the result of making the huge audience arise at different moments instead of joyfully all together, and this had considerable damping effect on the vibration."—Reuters (London).

Fair Will Have Doll House Show

Woodstock, June 27—Grown-up young women of this community will be called upon to exhibit doll houses they made when children when the local library holds its annual fair July 19, it was announced today.

The proposal that doll houses be exhibited was made by Mrs. George Layman and will be carried out with the assistance of others working for the success of the affair and the co-operation of those who have doll houses to be shown.

It was a dozen or more years ago that the famed Titania's Palace, with all its miniature of furniture and equipment, down to the last collar button no bigger than a pin-point, made its first American tour. And the fashion has lasted on to this present summer when another English palace is on its way across the continent. Thus Woodstock, with its showing at the library fair of its own doll palaces, again steps out and catches up with the smart set.

In addition to the doll houses, the young group also provide peep-shows. Last year, the peep shows—one cent a peep—brought in a neat little sum which the children felt was their contribution to the library. This year the group is already busy, planning to devote the intervening weeks till July 10 to creating new and better shows of this character.

The passionate interest shown by the young exhibitors in the peep show again has stirred the dog, the cat, the chicken, the frog, the rabbit, and who knows what else, will be there, led firmly if unwillingly before the discriminating eyes of competent judges whose glad task it will be to pick the winners. Miss Rhoda Chase and Mrs. James Purcell will have charge of the pet show.

Subways for Imperial Rome
ROME.—Italy's plans for extending the city limits of Rome to Ostia, 30 miles away, include the construction of a subway system which will pass under the heart of Imperial Rome. The subway will be completed in time to serve visitors to the Rome 1942 World's fair, the site of which is midway between Rome and Ostia, ancient seaport. The buildings on the site of the fair will be part of the permanent city now rising on the site. Hourly capacity of 82,000 persons will be possible in the new subway.

Pinola were presented by Mrs. Ernest Jansen, Sunday school superintendent and a solo was sung by Mrs. Edward Muller Jr.

Treasury Slashes Price on Silver

Washington, June 27 (AP)—The treasury slashed its price for foreign silver today from 43 to 40 cents an ounce.

This action was taken less than 24 hours after the Senate voted to discontinue purchases of foreign silver after July 1.

The treasury's foreign silver price had been 43 cents per ounce since March 1935, and had been 45 cents per ounce for two years prior to that cut.

Foreign silver has been purchased by the treasury since 1934 under an act requiring the treasury to try to raise the world price of silver to $1.29 per ounce, its colorage value, by acquiring $1 of silver for every $3 of gold in the treasury.

Children's Day Observed At Church in High Falls

High Falls, June 27—A Children's Day program was given at the High Falls Reformed Church Sunday. The prayer was by the Rev. Harold Hoffman, pastor of the church, and two infants, Stanley Barrett and Warren Williams, Jr., were baptized.

Pinola were presented by Mrs. Ernest Jansen, Sunday school superintendent and a solo was sung by Mrs. Edward Muller Jr.

presentation talk. Ulster county under the leadership of Philip Elting, had a record it was well proud of, declared Mayor Heiselman.

"In fact," said Mayor Heiselman Ulster county and Kingston boasts some of the finest scenery, climate, fishing and fruits of the season of any county in the state. "It's the swellest place in the world" declared Kingston's mayor.

"We up in Ulster county," continued Mayor Heiselman, "realize that the life of a mayor of New York city is a veritable bowl of cherries and for that reason we decided to present you with this bowl filled with luscious fruit."

Mayor Heiselman called attention to the fact that Ulster county and the boroughs comprising New York city were among the oldest in the state. "While you in New York have somewhat exceeded us in population," declared Mayor Heiselman, "still we have many other things left for which to be proud."

LaGuardia on Compensation
"While it is true that New York city has exceeded Kingston in population," said Mayor LaGuardia in accepting the gift, "it is also true that nature has its own remedy in other ways; for instance in the growth of the two mayors." Since Mayor Heiselman towered a foot or more over Mayor LaGuardia in height, the sally drew hearty applause from the audience.

Mayor LaGuardia said that the new water system when it was placed in operation in Ulster county would deliver 250,000,000 gallons of water to the faucets in New York city for the first several weeks, and that amount gradually would be increased.

New York's mayor said that it might well be a good idea for New York city to lay claim to the land that covered the water mains that carried Ulster's water to the big city, and then in time it could annex a large share of Ulster county.

Just Three Reasons
"There are just three reasons why that idea can not be carried out," said Mayor LaGuardia. "The first is because the state legislature would not permit it, and the other two reasons are therefore unimportant."

Mayor LaGuardia turning to Mayor Heiselman said "And I will not forget your kind invitation to come up to Ulster county and bring along this bowl when it is empty to have you fill it. I am planning to be in Ulster county soon on a tour of inspection and you can be sure that if it is possible I will accept the invitation."

Gift to Museum
New York's mayor said it might be a good idea to place the gift in the city's museum, inscribed to the effect that it was a gift from Ulster county and was an assurance of lower taxes on New York's water system in the upstate county.

Mayor Heiselman replied with a smile that he was not the man to see in regard to lower assessments and taxes on the big city's aqueduct properties in Ulster county, but the board of supervisors.

Attorney Henry Bright of Woodstock, general chairman of the Ulster County Council who had charge of the arrangements for the day at the fair, presided at the exercises and introduced Chairman Snyder who made the presentation of one of the bowls to Mr. Donovan who received it for Mr. Whalen, and said that Mr. Whalen regretted it was not possible to be present.

The presentations brought to a close the official proceedings of the Ulster-Kingston Day at the fair, and the delegation were entertained in the governor's rooms in the administration building on the fair grounds.

Guests at Dinner
Monday evening Mayor Heiselman and Mr. Elting were among the guests at the dinner of the water department of New York city.

From the moment the visitors

BALDWIN URGES 'HOME RULE'

Addressing the conference of governors at Albany, N. Y., Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin (standing) of Connecticut urged "decentralization and home rule of relief and public works projects," claiming the federal government is using public works to "extend its powers into the states." Seated in front of Gov. Baldwin are Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana and Gov. John E. Miles (in white suit) of New Mexico.

from the county thronged through the turnstiles until they left the fair grounds every minute was taken up in viewing the many exhibits.

A day, however, is far too short a time to see the fair properly and it was only possible to view as many exhibits hastily as possible. General Motors has one of the biggest and best exhibits on the grounds and all day long thousands stormed the building to obtain a ride on the railroad that wound around "The World of Tomorrow," a mighty panoramic spectacle that showed a conception of what the world will look like in 1960 while nearby the Ford exhibit had a major attraction, a ride in the 1939 cars over the Road of Tomorrow which wound in gentle inclines to a height of 32 feet above the fair grounds affording an excellent view of the grounds.

Night Display Attractive
If the fair is attractive in daylight it is even more beautiful at night with the many colored lights and the searchlights that searched the skies.

Another exhibit that drew thousands was the telephone building where long lines of people waited in line for an opportunity of seeing if their number was drawn so that they could telephone to any part of the country free of charge.

Every 20 minutes four winning numbers were displayed and the winners were escorted one at a time to enclosed glass booths, one on each side of the mammoth stage. On the wall behind the stage stretching from the floor to the ceiling was a huge map of the United States and when a call was put through a glowing light of electric bulbs illuminated the call from the point where it was made to the point the call was placed.

One Kingston resident stood in line for nearly an hour to obtain a chance to telephone for the novelty and as a memento of the fair. When the numbers went up he found that one of the winning numbers was 55. His was 56.

Firestone, Goodrich and other large world-known concerns also had wonderful buildings and exhibits at the fair.

It was nearly midnight when the tired but happy delegation from Ulster county and Kingston crowded into the chartered buses and started for home, after enjoying a day that will long remain vivid in their memories.

Woodstock Group To Give Stellar Comedy This Week

"You Can't Take It With You," the Kaufman-Hart comedy to be presented by the Woodstock Playhouse June 29 through July 2, promises to bring to its audience some of the best and biggest laughs it ever has had.

The plot is built around Grandpa Vanderhof and his genial and untrifled attitude toward everything. Thirty-five years ago he came to the conclusion that "you can't take it with you," so he stopped worrying about making money and decided to have a good time instead. His attitude spreads to everyone who comes into the household and each member has his own peculiar eccentricity resulting in amusing complications which become unraveled during the course of the play.

Donald Mae Henry will play the role of Grandpa Vanderhof. Velma Royton is playing Penny, his daughter who tries to write plays. Betty Mallock plays the part of Alice, the youngest and sanest of them all, while Robert Whitehead, a newcomer to the Woodstock theatre, plays the role of the son of the highly conventional family, who falls in love with Alice.

Housely Stevens, Sr., is back again this season to provide comedy in the role of Mr. DePinna and Richard Bowler, another newcomer, is the sympathetic father of Alice. Ivan Tricault, an actor resident of Woodstock who appears for the first time with the company, plays the erratic Russian dancing master. Edith Gresham and Bram Nossen are the wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, parents of Alice's friend.

Marion Sittler dances through the role of Essie and John Barrere plays the role of her husband.
